PREAMBLE

One of the objectives of the Universidad Politécnica de Madrid is to promote and develop scientific cooperation with other international institutions. This can be encouraged through the joint international supervision of PhD theses. Such joint supervision favours PhD candidate mobility and helps to strengthen the ties between UPM groups and groups from other universities with regard to cooperation. Additionally, they contribute to and benefit from the participation of research groups in numerous international initiatives, covered, for example, by Marie Skłodowska-Curie innovative training network actions (MSCA-ITN-EID European industrial doctorates, MSCA-ITN-EJD European joint doctorates, and MSCA-ITN-ETN European training networks).

The joint supervision of PhD theses shall be carried out in accordance with this procedure, regulated under the provisions of RD 99/2011, consolidated after the publication of RD 195/2016, involving the signature of an agreement between two universities based on the principle of reciprocity. By virtue hereof, each institution shall recognize the validity of the doctoral thesis based on a single defence at either university, and, as a matter of form, "Doctoral thesis supervised jointly with the UNIVERSITY shall be stated explicitly on the front of the doctoral degree certificate.

PROCEDURE

The joint supervision of each doctoral thesis shall be carried out within the framework of cooperation between the UPM and another university, according to a joint supervision agreement signed by the rectors or equivalent of both universities, the doctoral programme coordinators or equivalent and the doctoral thesis supervisors (one per university) and by the doctoral candidate (Annex I).

The application for joint supervision shall be submitted to the Doctoral Programme Academic Board (DPAC) attaching the documents supporting the collaboration and shall require authorization by the UPM's Doctoral Board (hereafter referred to as UPM-DB), after which the respective agreement with the other university shall be signed.
